The events transpiring at this point, and in the army before Richmond, during the past four days, have been of such varied character and thrilling interest that I scarcely know where to begin or end the record, in order to make it all understandable to the general reader. Many who were eye-witnesses to these movements have fied off panic-stricken, fully convinced that the whole army before Richmond has been destroyed, and that General McClellan has been out-witted, out-generaled, out-flanked and "driven to the wall," where he promised to place the enemy. The evacuation of White House was to them an inexplicable mystery under any other condition of facts; but had they kept their eyes open early in the week they would have discovered that the work of evacuation was silently and surely progressing before any of the fighting on the right wing, as early as Tuesday, and that large numbers of vessels had left the York and Pamunky rivers and were also have observed that all civilians were forbidden to approach the front as early as Tuesday, under any pretence whatever, and

About one hundred more of the unded arrived, and were removed, with the others, to the hospital steamers, where the military committee, with their large ps of surgeons, and the numerous Sisters Charity in attendance, did all in their wer to render the poor fellows comfortable. There are also a large number of vol-unteer semale nurses in attendance, who are unremitting in their attention and kindness to the sick and wounded. The reports from the front on Thursday vening continued favorable, heavy skirmishing having taken place on the right, resulting in the repulse of the enemy, and a few more of the wounded arrived, who reported everything progressing most satisfactorily, whilst all the indications were that a general battle along the whole line would take place the next day (Friday) The trains were kept in motion all night carrying forward munitions of war, whits the wagon trains were still lining the roads with commissary stores.

THE GREAT ALARM.

Jackson and Ewell, in attempting to turn the right flank, were repulsed by General McCalt with his Pennsylvania reserves, and driven back with great slaughter. This attempt of Jackson was made at three o'clock in the morning, and had closed at six o'clock, with a signal victory. There was also great commotion among the crowds of contrabands, who have been found most efficient laborers, and who have been used to great advantage in the commissary and munition departments. They ed, and, on being assured by Colonel Ingalls that they would not be left behind to meet the vengeance of their masters, went to work with renewed energy. Stores and munitions everywhere disappeared from the landing with great rapidity, and were being packed on the wharf-boats and vessels contiguous. The wives and children of the contrabands also soon made their appearance, and with The down train of cars due at 7 o'clock bundles and babies took position on the canal boats as they were floated out in the stream.

The mail steamer, which should have left for Fortress Monroe at seven o'clock in the morning, was ordered to be detained, and at nine o'clock a dispatch was received that a general battle was progressing along the whole line, the enemy having renewed the second dispatch announced that General and repulsed them three times with terrific slaughter, and was then ordered by Gen-eral McClellan to fall back. Thus ended the events of of Assistant Quartermaster Sawtell. The household furniture and the servants of these officials also soon followed, which increased the excitement among the sut-lers and army followers. Some of the sutlers became so panie-stricken as to sell out their stocks at half-price, and hastened on board the boat, whilst some determined to hold on and take the chances. That there was an intention on the part of General McClellan to evacuate the as a necessity or a strategle movement could not at that time be foreseen.

THE PANIC CHECKED.

During the afternoon the panic increased ntil hatf-past three o'clock, and the steamers and tugs were busily engaged in towing down the transports. At three o'clock a dispatch was received from headquarters, in substance as follows:

We have been driving the enemy before us on the left wing for the past half hour. This was the signal for a new change in the programme. All the Government valuables and the property of the officers was still left at the wharf to receive any new time the arrivals from the battlefield, and the Danlel Monroe.

SCENES ON THIRIVER.

About 7 o'clock on friday evening nnm bers of the wounded ommenced to arrive from the front of the lines, with a few of the most intelligent of whom I had an op-portunity of conversing Those engaged in the repulse of Storewall Jackson represented his rout to be most quick and disas-trous. He came down on them expecting a surprise, but 6... surprise, but found from all momentarily expecting his approich, having been informed by General McClellan two days previous that he was coming upon them. Instead of a surprise the enemy received the first shot, and, after two hours' fight retreated in confusion

The wounded from the fight which im-mediately ensued refresented it to have been a most terrific encounter, the enemy coming out from Richmond upon them in such dense masses that the shell and grape the speculations of the uninitiated, but poured into them as they advanced made Colonel Ingalls, under whose directions the evacuation was progressing, moved about as mediately filled up and they moved forward coolly as a summer's morning.

The morning train brought down the gratifying news that the forward movements of Gen. Hooker had been entirely successwhich were destructive on both sides, but when Gen. Porter ordered a bayonet charge they retreated in double-quick, though Gen. Porter pursued them but a short distance

The enemy again rallied and approached our lines a second time, when the same terrible slaughter ensued; this time their artillery being better served was more effective in the ranks of our men. On coming to close quarters they were again reputsed and driven back a still greater dislauce, this twice fought battle ground being literally strewn with the dead and dying. General Porter then a second time fell back to his position and awaited nearly an hour for the enemy to renew the assault. They, however, finally came on in increased num bers, having been largely re-enforced, and were again received with shell and grape, ausing great chasms in their ranks, and one poor fellow, who had lost his arm, assured me that he saw the loose arms and portions of the bodies of the enemy making gyrations through the air. A third time the enemy hore down most bravely and determinedly on our lines, and this conflict was the most severely contested of the whole, On Friday morning the first item of news but when the bayonet was brought to hear from the front, received by telegraph, was Queneral Casey reports that he has lost not when their advance was checked by the cnmy in check whilst the force which had previously hore the brunt of the battle moved steadity back and in good order, carrying with them their wounded and dead.

The enemy made a flarce attack on the eserve, but cannon were posted at various coints of the route by which they were retiring towards the Chickshominy, which occasionally poured in shot and shell upon them, and checked their movements and enabled the troops to move back in the most admirable order. At one time in this retrograde movement the reserve force of Gen. ykes charged on the enemy with the bayonet, and drove him back nearly a mile. this charge the gatlant New York 5th and Col. Benedix's New York 10th drew forth the plaudits of the army by their steadiness and bravery, in which they, however, lost about a hundred of their numbers, whose codies it was necessary to leave on the field. Cheers went up along our whole lines at this gallant repuise, which was at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and the enemy did not again renew the attack during the balance the evening, but turned his columns down toward the White House, which seemed to be the haven of all his. hopes. The division of the enemy dispatched in this thirty thousand, cavalry, artillery and infantry. They started down at three o'clock on Friday afternoon. STATEMENT OF A PATHASTER.

In conversation with a paymaster, who was with General Porter's division, when the battle commenced, I have a very full confirmation of the statement of this gallant soldier. He says that being anxious for the safety of the large amount of treasure in his possession, he asked instruc-tions, and was told to proceed on towards Savage Station on the Richmond side of the Chickaheminy, in company with the wagon train then moving in that direction with the knapsacks of the men and all the aluables from the various camps of the division. He joined the train and moved on, and describes the artillery reserves stationed along the road to protect the resiring of the right wing of the army across the Chickahominy. He says it was a most orderly movement, conducted slowly and steadily, and that the only evidence of panic was among some teamsters, who threatened to break their lines, but were who drew on them, and were ordered to blow out the brains of the first man who deserted his post or disobeyed the orders of the guards. This gentleman left the Savage Station, south of the Chickahominy, at 7 c'clock on Saturday morning, and states that during the night the entire right wing of the army passed over the river in perfect order, not losing a wagon of the train, and only leaving such portion of their camps as was not deemed worth removing as they retired to soon as his movements in tront should be their new lines. There had been no fight-perfected there was no doubt, but whether ing during the night, though at five o'clock on Saturday morning some heavy cannonading was in progress on the extreme left, towards the James river, which soon ceased, however, and at 7 o'clock all was again quiet. The railroad was in operation all night on Friday after the battle, and the last train that left for the White House took its departure at 7 o'clock, and met no interruption on the way down.

WASHINGTON, June 29, 1862. Since closing my letter from the White House, I find myself very unexpectedly in Washington City, and in possession of most reliable information from the White House and other points on the Peniusula, nearly day later than are contained in my letter. END OF THE WHITE HOUSE.

It appears that the telegraphic communi-tion between the White House and General McClellan was not broken until near lo'clock, on Saturday, and then the wire was cut at Dispatch Station, eleven mlles out. Tunstall's Station, four miles out, was in our possession until four o'clock in the afternoon, at which hour the operator at the White House heard a strange signal coming over the wire. On going to the instrument he was heralded with what the Federal soldiers call the rebel national salute: "I say, O you Yankee of This was the sig-nal given for the final evacuation, when a portion of the infantry forces immediately embarked on steamboats in walting for them, the last of the transports was moved off by the steamings, and the few articles scattered about on shore, even some damaged hay, was fired. The whole was of very small value, and thus, of the many millions of property here a few days ago, perhaps not $5,000 was destroyed. In the midst of this closing scene of the beautiful Chickahominy region, I regret to have to state that some vandal set fire to the White House, and it was entirely con-sumed. This, doubtless, arose from the ridiculous teachings of a recent grave Senatorial debate on this little cottage.

The enemy made his appearance in considerable force at the White Honse, about seven o'clock on Saturday evening, and although he found neither bread for man nor hay for beasts, was welcomed with heavy showers of grape-shot from the three gunhoats which were ranged along in front of the landing. They were supposed to he thirty thousand strong, and, unless they brought their haversacks well supplied, must have gone supportean to bed. In the best of times, I found starvation to stare me in the face at White House, and I hope the rebels found no better fare. RETIREMENT OF THE TROOPS.

The cavalry at the White House guarded the departure of the last of the wagons and horses which moved off at the final evacuation, and joined the force under General Stoneman who were hovering around the vicinity all day. After passing these trains continue his retrogade movement slowly and off, and scenting their safety, General in order. So soon as it beca he apparent to Stoneman, with his entire force, moved off TELEGRAPHIC COMMUNICATION. Since a very early hour on Saturday morning General McClellan has been deprived of his telegraphic communication with Washington. He abandoned its use several hours before the wires were cut, doubtless being fearful that the enemy wight by placing a market to the miner. might, by placing a magnet on the wires, read his orders. The fight of yesterday was most terrific, the enemy having two to our one. The hattle commenced with our land forces, and, after about four hours fighting, our gunboats got in range and poured into the rehels a heavy and incessant fire. This fire the rebels stood about two hours, and then retreated.

I learn that he had to spike his siege guns, and leave them on the field, after burning the carriages. The nature of the ground rendered it impossible to move them. In the retreat, our sick and wounded were neessarily left behind. There are, of course, innumerable reports and rumors here, but I send only what appears to be authentic. It is rather lengthy, and portions of it caused considerable laughter. Gen. Hunter says to the first question: I therefore reply that no regiment of fugitive slaves has been or is being organized in this department. There is, however, a fine regiment of persons whose late masters are fugitive rebels-men who every where fix before the approach of the national flag leaving their servants behind them to shift as best they can for themselves. NEW YORK, July 2. The Times has detailed reports of the battles of Thursday, Friday and Saturday, from which it appears that the right wing of our army, about 20,000 men, was attacked Friday by a rebel force not less than 50,000, and after a gallant fight, our troops crossed the Chickahominy in order. On Saturday night and Sunday our whole left wing, under Heintzelman, Keys, and Sumner, fell back along the line of the railroad and the Williamsburg road, and marched to

The Times correspondent states that McClellan established his headquarters on Monday on Malvern Hill, one mile back of Turkey Island Bend. At 2 o'clock Monday onr firing was heard for two hours in the direction of White Oak Swamp, where Ayres was holding the rebels in check, who were attempting to cross. An immense force of rebel artiflery and cavalry, both from Richmond, then appeared on our left, when Porter's and Keye's command went to resist the enemy. A terrific fight ensued and it became evident that the overpowering force of rebels was gaining ground, when the gunboats Galena and Aroostook opened with the 24 pounders upon the enemy. The fight continued till dark diminishing away into occasional day tast, just previous to the departure for Liverpool of the British steamship Africa Miss Lotty Hough who appeared at the Howard Atheneum a few weeks since, and gained considerable applause in her personations of impossible Yankee girls, had secured her passage in the steamer, when her husband, hearing of it, went to the Chief of Police and represented that she was non empor mentis, and that he wanted to have intelligent officer with the husband to investigate it. Miss Hough was found in the saloou of the steamer, her husband pointed her out to the officer, and directed him roughly, in the presence of others, to arrest "that woman." Miss Hough immediately went on shore at the request of the officer, Miss Hough immediately and explained to him that she had been obliged to support her husband for the past ten years, and that she was now going to England to escape from his persecutions The husband meanwhile was engaged in dragging some of his wife's baggage ashore, and in-informing the people around him that he was going to have Miss Rough him that he was going to have Miss Hough arrested. After hearing the stary, the officer told Miss Hough that he had no authority to detain her that she appeared capable of taking care of herself, and that she could depart in the stepmer and take her baggage with her, which she accordingly did; and her husbanl was left on the wharf without money enough to pay his passage in the ferry back to the city.

NEW YORK, July 8. The World's correspondence arrived here from the field of battle before Richmond at different points, and summarily repulsed the enemy at three o'clook, when they pressed Heintzelman's left very hard, but Sumner went to his relief, and they were finally repulsed with great slaughter. Heintzelman captured 8 guns and a whole brigade of rebels sixteen hundred strong, including their Colonels, Pendleton, of Louisiana, ex-Congressman Lamar, of Georgla, and Mc-

There have been a great many wounded prisoners taken on both sides.
Our informant says Gen. McClellan and his staff all agree that the present position of our army is far more advantageous as a base of operations against Richmond, than that hitherto occupied. The gunboats can now be brought to bear, and materially aid in carrying on the work. Some of our regiments have suffered ter-ribly, while others have suffered but little. Our left wing was engaged yesterday, July 1st, up to 2 o'clock, with the enemy, mostly with artillery. use; while the order of the Board, then, the object proposed, viz: to relieve the schools of disloyal teachers, can be more effectually accomplished by the plan adopted by the Board than by the one so ardented to the Board than by the one so ardented to the Board than by the one so ardented to the Board than by the one so ardented to the Board than by the one so ardented to the Board than by the one so ardented to the Board than by the grant that the order of the Board, then would be effective. If, then, the object proposed, viz: to relieve the schools of disloyal teachers, can be more effectually accomplished by the plan adopted the Board than by the one so ardented the Board than by the one so ardented the Board than by the open than the Board than th ly contended for by Tax Payer, Union, and Philo, why should the Board be censured for having adopted it? Thirdly. Why should a loyal man object to taking the oath? A teacher is not an offer, and therefore the rule requiring officers to take an oath of office is not applicable to him. If he is an American, his birthright is all the privileges of an American citizen, unless he forfeit them by violation of law. To place a citizen who may have grown gray on the soil of his birth, who has always loved and venerated the Constitution of his country as the most nearly perfect human production the world has ever seen; one who intends to die under the stars and stripes: to place such a one ander the necessity of buying his birthright, which he has never lost or forfeited by act. word, or thought, like a stranger born on a bill, was taken up.

On motion of Mr. Elliott the substitute disloyal, to purchase the privilege of cononly to be taken by those who never had American citizenship, or who have forfeited igan canal bill was reconsidered, and the subject was postponed till December. their business without molestation? The unfairness and inequality of the whole matter ought to strike every man at sight. If it is necessary for the public good, let the Conneil order that every man and woman in the city come forward within twenty days and take such oath as may be prescribed, or go somewhere else to make a living. If it be right to subject one class of our fellow-citizens to this alternative, it cannot be wrong to subject all. Don't make a dozen men and a hundred women the scape-goats of the city, because they hap-pen to be teachers. Come, Messrs. Taxpayer, Union, Philo and Kentuckian, bring your wives and daughters with you, and let us see your face while you and they submit to the same test to prove your loyalty, that is required of a Turk or a traitor, and that not among strangers, but among those who have known you for years. If you are in earnest, gentlemen, come out and urge the Council to pursue their course, and if there is any virtue in swearing, we a hall get to the root of the matter by convert. ag the parents of those children who have thaved so improperly. PRIVATE OPINIOS OF THE TIMES ON THE UNION ARMY.

(From the Philadelphia Butletin.) A private letter, received by agentleman of this city from a foreigner of distinction (not an Englishman), resident in London, contains the following interesting passages:
"London, June 10.—The great successes of the Federal arms have filled me with strong hopes of seeing the rebellion soon put down. We have, it is true, by the last received accounts, news of some reverses which Banks' army had sustained, and which seem to have created quite a panic at Washington. I think, however, such misfortunes must be regarded as mere accidents, and of no moment to the eventful issue of the contest. If the North holds as well together for a few months longer as it has hitherto done, the South must, I think,

One of the editors of the Times, with whom I talked the other day about America, admitted that, from the accounts they had, and, I suppose, relying chiefly on what their former correspondent, Mr. Russell, has told them, the North possessed, at present, an army such as no power ever be-fore had—an army which, in point of the character of the men and their complete equipment, was without a parallel, and the tremendous engine of war any State had ever created.

I was delighted to hear such a testimony to the energy and power of the North, from a quarter so strongly prejudiced against the Union. The Times has certainly done a great deal of mischief by its spiteful articles against America; but it ought not to make you suppose that the general feeling of this country is against America, and that the Euglish people would hail with joy a breaking up of the Union and the estab-lishment of the Southern Confederation. Such sentiments are only entertained by aristocracy, some prominent statesmen and politicians, but the general feeling of the country is, I am convinced, quite in the other direction. And to be fair, it must be admitted, I think that the Government, whatever may be its feelings and wishes, has observed a strict and honest neutrality, which in its effects has been far more damaging to the South than prejudicial to the North. If some vessels have broken the blockade and supplied the Southerners with arms and ammunitions of war, only think of the HEINTZELMAN'S UPINION .- A correspond ent of the New York Tribune thinks the probabilities in front of Richmond favor delay. He gives his reasons thus:

"Because, first, as I heard rough-and-ready Heintzelman say 'We've got 'em foul-sure; and what the d—l is the use, Senator (I'm not the man he was addressing), of risking anything till the last man is just where we want him?' And, secondly, a few days' delay will add to the certainty of the

A SHARP TRICE.—At St. Paul, Minnesota, the other day, an officer arrested a man for fast driving, and had him first arrested a man for fast driving, and had him first arrested a man for fast driving, and had him first arrested a man for fast driving, and constitutional Syphills, Diseases of the kidneys, acc. fast driving, and had him fined five dollars. Man hadn't got the money, and asked the officer to get into his buggy and drive down to his house and get the funds. Accommodating officer did so, but found, to his cost, that the horse wouldn't go slow, and that he was compelled himself to drive faster than the city ordinance allowed As a consequence, when he got back to the police office, he was fined an equal amount, which he paid, a wiser man.
